Course policy:

- Attendence: You are expected to attend every class and not to be late. If you have four unexcused absences, each additional absence will lead to a reduction of your final grade. If you need to miss a class, please email Adam IN ADVANCE about this.
- Participation: You are strongly encouraged to participate in class, by asking for clarifications, answering questions, or in any other reasonable way. It is much better to provide wrong answers or ask weird questions than to sit quietly.
- Quizzes: will be at least one quiz in this course. However, not solving questions correctly on a quiz will not affect your grade. Instead, these are meant to evaluate how the class is doing.
- Homework: On most weeks there will be a homework assignment. These will be LeetCode questions.
- Exams: There will be no exams in this course.
- Project: There will be a project involving AI, coding, and algorithmic design. You will present your project in class.
- Grading: Attendance, participation, and not copying AI answers without a good understanding of those.
- Getting Help: Feel free to attend as many office hours as you like and for any reason — no appointment necessary for scheduled office hours. You are welcome to attend office hours even if you have no questions or you wish to discuss pineapples. You are also welcome to email Adam to schedule additional times to meet.

- Academic Honesty: The Department of Mathematics fully supports Baruch College's policy on Academic Honesty which states, in part:

  > "Academic dishonesty is unacceptable and will not be tolerated. Cheating, forgery, plagiarism and collusion in dishonest acts undermine the college's educational mission and the students' personal and intellectual growth. Baruch students are expected to bear individual responsibility for their work, to learn the rules and definitions that underlie the practice of academic integrity, and to uphold its ideals. Ignorance of the rules is not an acceptable excuse for disobeying them. Any student who attempts to compromise or devalue the academic process will be sanctioned."

  Academic sanctions in this class will range from an F on the assignment to an F in this course. A report of suspected academic dishonesty will be sent to the Office of the Dean of Students. Additional information and definitions can be found at `http://www.baruch.cuny.edu/academic/academic_honesty.html`

  Math department policy regarding electronics usage during exams:

  > "All students must power off their cell phones or place them in airplane mode for the entire exam duration. Cell phones and other unapproved electronics (excluding approved calculators), including smart watches, must be completely secured in a closed bag or backpack and stored under your seat or in a designated area. Students who use, access, or handle their cell phone or other unapproved electronic device during an exam will receive a zero, regardless of the reason, and an Academic Integrity report will be filed with the Dean of Students. If you anticipate needing your phone for an emergency during an exam, arrangements to leave it with the instructor must be made before the exam. "

Counseling. At Baruch, we acknowledge that as a student, you are balancing many demands. During the semester, if you start to experience personal difficulties or stressors that are interfering with your academic performance or day to day functioning, please consider seeking free and confidential support at the Baruch College Counseling Center.
